Filled teeth were prepared and an apical leakage was created by the introduction of ethylene oxide gas to the root canal for 16 hours. The apical portion was then removed and the posts were cemented into the canals with a dual-cure resin cement. Blocks were filled with a mixture of Zinc Oxide and distilled water, which was later stained with India ink. Sections of 3 mm thickness were cut and dye penetration was evaluated microscopically. The data were analyzed statistically by chi-square test. Results showed that Scotchbond 2 provided less leakage than AH plus and C&B cement. Scotchbond 2 also formed a more stable seal than Z-100.Overexpression of multidrug resistance-associated protein 2 (MRP2) in biliary tract cancers. Multidrug resistance-associated protein 2 (MRP2), a drug-transporting protein, is known to participate in the accumulation of various chemotherapeutic agents in tumor tissues. In this study, therefore, we examined MRP2 mRNA expression in biliary tract cancers. In addition, we investigated its relationship to other transporter protein expressions and examined its clinical significance. We examined MRP2 mRNA expression in 47 primary biliary tract cancers cell lines using real-time reverse-transcriptase polyme
