Support for OS X 10.7 and 10.8 ShowPass is a password retrieving utility (obscure) that enables a user to read the password of a form or field, even if the password is hidden. Clicking the target button (included in the program) reveals the asterisk symbol - it is this that makes the password visible. ShowPass is not an automatic password validator - it works only when the password is presented through a form, a popup, a video, a forum post, a tracker, an email address, a website, a video or audio file, a forum, a MP3 or a much more. ShowPass is easy to use and does not require any configuration, just install it and it works. ShowPass has been designed to work with asterisk passwords and therefore cannot read any field with dots as the target symbol. Included are stand-alone applications that can be used to view hidden fields, i.e. desktop applications and web browsers that do not have an ability to set password length as a default value. The application uses the focus of the document the password was put in as the target field. It is implemented to work with Firefox (Windows only), Chrome (Windows only), Internet Explorer, Safari (Windows only), Opera, Thunderbird, SeaMonkey and QuickSilver (all Windows only). Note: All the extensions mentioned above are not freeware! Useful as a security tool when you have forgotten your password to an account that allows you to change your password, and when you want to recover your password after forgetting it. ShowPass is an application that retrieves passwords that are hidden in web forms, emails, and many other content forms. No configuration is required, just download, install, use, and forget. Showpass can be made to open in all browsers or to open a specific browser or application. ShowPass downloads and installs all of the

ShowPass Crack+

ShowPass is a free software that reveals asterisk passwords. It works with any application that can show asterisks. Features: 1. You can use ShowPass to recover your password from the asterisk field itself. 2. It has no known viruses, spyware or adware. 3. It requires no configuration and no setup. 4. When you recover your password this way, the information is immediately revealed. 5. You can install this free software on up to 10 PCs. 6. It works in all browsers. 7. It is extremely easy to use. ShowPass is an excellent tool that allows you to reveal the hidden text in fields that displays asterisk characters such as asterisks (*), bullets (•), hash marks (#), or password characters. It can be accessed from any application that can display asterisks. This includes the address bar of any web browser that you might use. When you open it for the first time, the field will be displayed with a default password in it. In most situations, there will be only a single key in the field, so it will show up as a single asterisk. Simply click the ShowPass icon from your desktop or any place in your browser. Once you click the target icon, the password will be displayed and, once you are done, just click the icon again to hide it. The password is automatically deleted from the field the next time you open ShowPass. It will work in all browsers; any browser based on Internet Explorer.
