Torrent Wilcom EmbroideryStudio E3The Apache Software Foundation, the steward of the Apache HTTP server, has once again declared its open source project of the year. On a whim, we'd say. A team of developers contributed significantly to Apache projects in 2015: here are the top 10. 1. Apache MyFaces MyFaces is a Java framework for creating web user interfaces. It supports Ajax, is fully HTML5 and CSS3-compliant and is cross-browser compatible. Among the well-known projects using MyFaces are Adobe Dreamweaver, RoR, Phoca and PlayN. 2. Scala Scala is an object-oriented programming language that is built on the principles of functional programming and strict typing. Scala provides support for reflection, as well as programming in a completely object-oriented manner. 3. Apache OpenMeetings OpenMeetings is a Java-based open source collaboration platform. It is designed to meet the needs of medium- to large-sized organizations. OpenMeetings is an Ajax-based Web application, which integrates collaboration, video and presentation capabilities. 4. ElasticSearch ElasticSearch is a mature and robust open source search engine. The project is based on Lucene, a well-known, lightweight, open source search engine. ElasticSearch is also the core of a very popular open source product called Elastic Stack. 5. Apache Trafodion Apache Trafodion is a columnar storage engine originally developed by IBM. It is a columnar storage
