even say “roast to order.” But, and this is the counterintuitive thing, a small dose, and sometimes a very small dose, is often good for a busy person. Vancouver is slowly morphing into the New York of the North. Also as the New York of the North, you may have noticed there’s been a lot of talk lately about the new coffee scene. And the rise of small, artisanal roasters, some of whom are growing their own beans. There’s a café/bar in Gastown called Blue Water Cafe that has about 30 local roasters who supply it. There’s Rogue Cup in Cambie. And there are several other ro

I play a game with myself while I take off my pants. I play basketball with myself. A pelican tells me to go catch a leptopus, so I run off and catch one. I got one. The ugly face pecks at me. I run away. I go into the wish room. I wish for a unicorn. I get one. I think about how I will love it. I put my head in its mouth. I am sure he will die soon. I run into the mermaids room. I take it back. I have no time. I run into the tea room. I take it out and a turban thing pops out. I see a bird outside. I go closer to see what it is. It is a dove. She lands on my shoulder. I put
