Welcome to the fifth edition of The Lumi Recognition Awards - a celebration of the best and brightest in the field of LED lighting. Here at NIST, we recognize that both nightmarket lighting and district lighting will continue to be integral to the economies of the future. And in the process of bringing lighting out of the dark, an innovation-recognition program needs to be proactive. The award criteria we've chosen for this year's program are: Safety Energy Efficiency Lifespan improvement Economic Value So we're asking industry experts and other luminaries in the field to nominate the brightest and best new inventions, materials, developments, or technologies that have affected the lighting industry over the past five years. We had a tough time narrowing down our list to the final nominees - there are simply too many. So we're asking each of our Lumi Recognition Award finalists to do us a favor. Take a look at our list of finalists and nominate one or more solutions that aren't listed. The final nominees will be voted on by industry luminaries. So what are we waiting for? Let's get to it. ELECTROLUMINESCENCE / EMISSIVITY AND WORKING LIGHTING Emissive materials - materials that give off light. Some examples: materials found in light emitting diodes (LEDs); electroluminescent "cool" materials. - materials that give off light. Some examples: materials
