Today, more than 40,000 Muni riders in the Mission District start their day using Muni's Mission Local and F Market & Wharves lines. Many of these riders take the more direct bus route when they arrive at work, and TransitNow will connect them to the Muni Metro N Judah and K Ingleside lines, which run through the Mission District, to N Judah's Embarcadero and St. Francis Circle station, and to the Market & Wharves and F Market & Wharves stations. "Traditionally, we would connect Muni buses with the subway at 7th and Market streets," said Muni's Metro Director, Jackie Purcell. "But now, Muni will connect with the subway at 8th and Market, and even more conveniently will travel over nearby bus stops at 3rd Street, Sanchez Street, 19th Street and 24th Street and connect to the subway at Embarcadero and F Market, where people can transfer and get off downtown." Muni is the first transit agency in the United States to connect buses to the subway in a single, multimodal system that the public can use. Travelers will be able to use Muni's system of buses, trains, streetcars, cable cars and ferries to get around the city. Connections to and from Muni will be available in the GATE system, allowing customers to see where their buses will leave and arrive via bus, cable car and streetcar, and when they may need to transfer to other modes. Customers' progress within the GATE system will be mapped, so they can see the closest Muni stops to where they are and what their options are. Customers will see clearly how much time they've saved by planning ahead. They'll also be able to see how much time they'll save when making a transit-based trip (as opposed to a car-based trip) by seeing the distance and time saved. TransitNow provides a convenient, faster and more reliable
